

What makes Corzan® HP piping systems superior to other non-metallic piping options?

Today there are more piping material choices than ever before. With the skyrocketing costs of most metals, non-metallic options now dominate in many industries. But of all the non-metallic systems on the market today, Corzan HP pipe and fittings represent the smart choice for one reason—quality.

Quality that comes from experience: Lubrizol invented CPVC more than 50 years ago. No one has more experience.

Quality that comes from technical expertise: Beyond providing a superior product, we also offer advanced research and development services, comprehensive testing facilities and technical service representatives that are available to be on-site with your team to solve problems and make recommendations.

Quality that comes from consistency: Every company that manufactures Corzan HP pipe participates in a contractually required Quality Assurance Program. This ensures consistency of product quality so that our pipe and fittings perform to the same high quality standards regardless of when, where or by whom they were manufactured.

Quality that comes from compatibility: No other company has developed a program that assures chemical compatibility of ancillary products to help installers know which products can be used confidently and safely. Our global FBC™ System Compatible Program is the only initiative that actually tests for chemical compatibility.

Quality that comes from choosing the right partners:

Only the best manufacturers with proven track records of quality and reliability are chosen as licensed partners to convert Corzan HP CPVC into high performance Corzan HP pipe and fittings. These include:

- Harvel Plastics, Inc. (pipe)
- IPEX (pipe & fittings)
- NIBCO (fittings).
